There had been another segment, which auggested that the interest in the alleged scheme would continue until 1890, when, as he understood it, it would expire by limita-tion. He did not make this statement ecause he supposed there would be any objection to the adoption of the resolution. He did not make this statement because he supposed there would be any soliciton to the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, whose name is appended to the alleged contract, said that so far as he was individually concerned, he had never known of such a hill as the ballot box bill. In his state they adhered to the good old plan of voting viva voce and, therefore, he had not relivery much interest in ballot boxes. The thing about which the gentlemen had a right to feel indignatures, but it was the iteration and relivation on the instinuation that while these gentlemen were guiltless of this offense, they might possibly be guilty of a similar and as yet undiscovered offense, they might possibly be guilty off a similar and as yet undiscovered offense, and it was for this reason principally this the united with his collesgue (Mr. Butterworth) in asking that an investigation in high be made, so that there should not be a suspicion resting on the name of anybody connected with the matter.
